

4th International Conference on eLearning for Knowledge-Based Society 24th South East Asia Regional Computer Conference

Message from the Permanent Secretary of the Ministry of Information and Communication Technology

This year, the International Conference on eLearning will be the fourth of its kind and will be organizing along with the 24th South East Asia Regional Computer Conference. The Ministry of Information and Communication Technology of Thailand is very proud to be involved in the Conferences. The previous Conferences have all exceeded our expectations and we expect that the results of this year's Conferences will exceed any of the earlier meetings and could play a major role in pushing forward computer and eLearning technology.

In many ways, eLearning and computer technology are among the Ministry's main focus. Through education, it is always possible to take full advantage of the social, economic, and cultural development. The only way we could achieve educational advances will be to apply technological knowledge to educational process. For this reason, the Ministry takes a very special interest in the Conferences and will do all we can to ensure that the exceptional success of the previous Conference will be repeated and expanded in this year's Conferences.

I am most pleased to welcome the participants of the International Conference on eLearning for Knowledge-Based Society and the 24th South East Asia Regional Computer Conference Conferences and would like to wish for the great success of the Conferences and for the development of eLearning and Computer Technology as a whole.
